FROM ALGIERS.

From the Boston Daily Advertiser, July, 30.

By the arrival at this port yesterday of the brig Aurelia, capt. Leach, in 56 days from Algiers, we learn that a frigate arrived at that place on the 9th of May from Constantinople, a present from the Grand Seignor to the Dey of Algiers. A few days previous a large polacre of about 400 tons burthen, arrived from the same place, laden with implements of war of every description. The Grand Seignor had highly complimented, and conferred many honors on the Dey for his firmness and intrepidity in defence of the city against the late attack of the British fleet under command of Lord Exmouth, and the whole tenor of his conduct during the late unhappy state of affairs; has presented him with a captain's dress on the occasion, which is considered the highest reward of valor.—On the 11th, 13th and 14th of May, great public rejoicings were manifested in consequence of the honour His Highness the Dey had received from the Grand Seignior.—Salutes of cannon were fired on those days 3 times a day from more than 600 pieces of cannon.

On the 28th of May, an Algerine brig and schr. sailed on a cruise, against what power was not known. Their navy may now consist of one frigate, two sloops of war, lately arrived from Constantinople, (repairing,) one sloop of war on the stocks, building, three 18 gun brigs, and one 18 gun schr. at sea.

On the 29th May, a Tuscan Ambassador arrived at Algiers, for the purpose of negotiating a treaty between that Dukedom and the Regency of Algiers.

The American Consul left Algiers on the 10th of May in the frigate U. States, on a visit to Tripoli and Tunis.

A gentleman from Port au Prince, who was there at the time of the explosion of the magazine as well as that at the fort, states that the report of the former, which was caused by lightning, was terrible, that the agitation continued a full minute, and that it was very destructive to the buildings in the vicinity, many of which had their roofs blown off, and were otherwise much injured. He heard of no person having been killed by it, though several who were walking the streets were considerably maimed by the falling of stones. The cause of the fort having been blown up, was said to have originated in a difficulty respecting two women—that the commandant had his commission taken from him, and was otherwise degraded, for which he threatened to blow up the fort. He accordingly fastened himself up in an apartment near the magazine, in order to execute his threat saying however, he would treat with the president or the general commanding, as to his being arrested, but should any one else attempt it, he should set fire to the train. The general ordered a detachment against him, who commenced a fire, and the commandant, fearing he might be killed, or taken without carrying into execution his threat, set fire to a barrel of powder, which blew him to atoms—but fortunately did little other damage. The soldiers belonging to the fort had previously marched out of the reach of the expected explosion.

Duc D'Enghein.—The French papers give circumstantial accounts of the digging up the remains of the unfortunate duke d'Enghein, in the bottom of the ditch of the castle of Vincennes, near where he was shot by order of Bonaparte. The peasant who dug his grave is still living, and pointed out the spot. The different parts of the body were found; the face turned downwards, and the skull fractured by a large stone thrown upon it. Not a particle of the skeleton was missing, with the single exception of one of his front teeth, which was probably broken by a musket ball. Seventy-three ducats were found upon him, and all his trinkets; a circumstance which proves that the gens'd armes were not permitted, as usual, to strip their victim. According to the evidence taken before the inquest, the prince pulled out one of his watches, near the place of execution, and offered it to a by-stander to convey to a person whom he named. No person, however, would undertake the commission. The prince then exclaimed with indignation, "What, cannot the grandson of the great Conde find a Frenchman to execute his last will?" He then steadfastly looked at the hole which was dug for his body, and turning to the gens d'armes, observed with a smile, "I am not afraid to die; but I am sorry that I am about to receive my death from the hands of Frenchmen." He then laid his right hand firmly on his breast, and said twice with a loud and manly voice, "Tirez au cœur"—"Fire at the heart"—All the witnesses concurred in stating that Caulincourt was present at the execution.—It is said, that on the sham trial which took place, the men who composed the council of war were struck with the intrepidity of his manner, and the firmness and candor of his language. They even hesitated in condemning him to death, & wrote to Bonaparte for his definitive determination. "Condemned to death," was the brief reply of the usurper. At the Thuilleries, too, even in Bonaparte's presence, one effort was made to save his life—Cambaceres was for saving him. "And how long" said Bonaparte turning full upon him in a rage, "have you been so saving of the blood of the Bourbons!" Half an hour after sentence was passed, the prince was executed.

Gent. Magazine.

BERLIN, MARCH 31.—The 30th of March was an important day for the capital of the Prussian monarchy, the celebration of which being the beginning of a new order of things, in the political state of the country. On the day preceding, there was a great dinner at the hall of the exchange, of which the most distinguished men of the empire, and the grand dignitaries participated, and where the toast, "the nation," was given with the greatest enthusiasm.—The following morning, there was after divine service, a grand parade, at which the king called up prince Blucher, from among his heroic soldiers, so dear to the Germans, as having contributed so much in liberating them, with this expression. "You must stand by my side; this is your day" (it was the anniversary of his entry at Paris.) The oration, which was delivered on that day by prince Hardenberg, as also, the conduct of the duke of of Weimar, and the oration of the king of Wurtemberg, together with the sentiments of the Frankfort diet, on the note of Hesse, respecting the purchase of domains by Hoffman, furnish bright rays of light to dispel the gloom of futurity, warranting the most charming hopes, that the empire of reason and justice will be established throughout Germany, in spite of all the exertions of feudal nonsense, and the spirit of casts against the rights of man as a social being.

DARMSTADT, APRIL 8.—There arrived a few days ago in the village of Arheiligen, in our neighborhood, a waggon with 4 horses, containing, besides some men and two women, twelve pretty and healthy looking farmer girls, none above the age of 16 nor below 12, to stay there through the night. It was soon understood by the landlord from the waggoner, whom he knew, what the view of these travellers was in thus making their journey, the following story about them being made known, viz:—that one of the travellers, a man, was a native of Wirtemberg who had already crossed four times over from America, for the purpose of rendering assistance either by his propositions or his advice, and even by considerable advances, to all such as were inclined to emigrate to America.—That this time, however, he was on his way with the view only safely to conduct these twelve young Wirtemberger girls into the United States, as brides for such of his countrymen as he knew waited for them, and who would, on no account, marry themselves with any but their own countrywomen.

From the Petersburg Intell. July 20.

GENERAL M'GREGOR'S ARMY.

We have been favored with the perusal of a letter from a gentleman of high military rank and respectability, dated at Fernandina the 11th inst. The writer describes the prospects of the Patriots as the most promising. They had possession of all the country, as far as St. Augustine, which place was expected to fall immediately upon the appearance of the Patriot Troops. The most flattering rewards are held out to all volunteers who may join the standard of General M'Gregor: A rich harvest also invites the Planter and purchaser of Land. The old subjects of Ferdinand, are selling their estates for a few cents per acre under the impression that their royal master will on a future day restore them to possession; but that day will never arrive. Florida will be entirely settled by the citizens of the U. States.

The officer next in command to Sir Gregor M'Gregor is Colonel Thornton Posey late of the United States army. Colonel Posey is a Virginian by birth, the son of the veteran General Posey who so distinguished himself in the revolutionary war. It was the fate of Colonel Posey like many other brave men, to be laid aside at the reduction of our army. When the field of glory and renown was no longer open to him in his native land; he repaired to that country which was most likely to afford the best opportunity for a display of military talent in the most honorable of causes, the cause of liberty. No two characters appear to be better fitted for advancing the arms of the Patriots than the commanders in Florida, M'Gregor and Posey. The former is the chieftain of one of the oldest and most warlike clans of North Britain. The character of the Highland Clans are little known in this country. They are entirely different from the character either of the Scotch, the English, or the Irish, and perhaps bear a more striking resemblance to the Indian tribes of America than to any other people. The will of their chief is the only law they know. To follow his fortune and gain his applause is the height of their ambition. So sensible were the English government of this, and so dreadful did the name of M'Gregor seem to Englishmen; that an act of Parliament was passed in 1746, prohibiting under the pain of death any of his majesty's subjects to use the name and arms of M'Gregor.

This act was afterwards repealed in 1783 as a reward for the military services performed by the highland regiments, as it was ascertained that the Highlanders of North Britain notwithstanding their aversion to the English government, were more to be depended upon in the field of Battle than the mercenary soldiers of the manufacturing and mercantile towns. Sir Gregor M'Gregor was nursed in the cradle of adversity and of arms. He was a soldier from his infancy.—such a General with such an aid as Colonel Posey; in such a cause, and with an army of young Virginians and Kentuckians must succeed.

Cannon Foundery.—The proving and inspection of nearly ninety tons of cannon took place last week at the new foundery lately established by Peter Townsend, esq. on Chamber's creek, Newburgh. They are the first cannon ever manufactured in New-York, and for smoothness of surface, hardness of metal and accuracy of boring never were excelled. The whole quantity passed the "ordeal" of double charges, and the most scrutinous inspection, without a single condemnation. Thirty tons more are nearly completed. We learn some very valuable improvements have been made in the mode of drilling and boring. The establishment is on a large scale, consisting of two furnaces and four boring mills, etc. which does great credit to the indefatigable proprietor, and worthy the state of New-York. The metal used is exclusively from the Monroe blast furnace, owned also by Mr. Townsend, and made of the well known sterling ore.

Nat. Adv.

Accounts from Trieste by the way of England state that Gen. Savary had been arrested in that city and conducted by order of the Emperor of Austria to a fortress in Hungary.

PHILADELPHIA, July 31.

We understand that colonel Wharton, of the corps of engineers, while on a visit to his friends in this city, was arrested by order of the secretary of the navy, in consequence of charges which have been exhibited against him by major Henderson. His trial is to take place at Washington, on the 11th August Captain C. Stewart of the navy is president of the court. We forbear, at this time, noticing the nature of the charges alledged against the colonel.

MASONIC LANGUAGE.

The following is an extract from a masonic oration on the character of Washington, by N. W. Bigelow, of Massachusetts. Among other memorials, borne in funeral procession, on this occasion, was an urn containing a lock of Washington's hair.

EXTRACT.

While with funeral pomp and masonic honors, we celebrate the obsequies of our deceased brother, where we bend with anguish over the urn, which contains a part of what was mortal in him, let us like him remember, that we are animated with a heavenly flame, which the chill damps of death cannot extinguish; like him resolve to square our actions by the rule of rectitude, persevere in the line of our duty, and restrain our passions within the compass of propriety, knowing that the all-seeing eye of our supreme Grand Master above continually observes us; that whenever we shall have performed the task assigned us here, we may like him be called from our work to those refreshments which alone can satisfy our immortal desires; That when we put off this earthly clothing, we may be arrayed with the garments of glory, put on the jewels of light, and shine forever in the sublime arch above.

THE DRAMA.

The appearance of Mrs. ENTWISLE on the Pittsburgh boards, will constitute an important era in the annals of western taste and improvement. To a native of Pittsburgh, who, like myself, can trace back its history to the time when it might, with propriety, be termed an Indian village, a treat like that which we had the pleasure of enjoying on Wednesday evening, was most gratifying. We well remember the day when the only circumstances that tended to chase the gnome of dullness from our town, was the occasional visits of an awkward itinerant slight of hand man, or the war dances of our red brethren, on their periodical visits to their great father at Washington. What a stride, what a change, from these scenes of barbarism, to one, in which Mrs. Entwisle forms the principal charm! This lovely and accomplished actress, made her debut here, in the part of the widow Cheerly. We are told it is one of her most celebrated characters. However this may be, her performance was certainly of the highest order in this line.—The unaffected gaiety, the fascinating ingenuousness, the benevolent naivete, of the "Soldier's Daughter," were hit off in a style so completely easy, so perfectly natural, as to induce us, without any further acquaintance with this charming performer, to place her in the first class of theatric talents. If we were called upon to specify particular passages that were peculiarly pleasing to us, we would cite her first interview with F. Heartall; the dialogue with her brother on his return, and the scene in which she softens the prejudices of the old governor,—in these, there was ample field for the display of that kind of abilities, which appear to be her characteristics, and she was eminently successful. The gratification was universal. Had it not been for that sad destroyer of illusion, imperfect machinery, which more or less, must pervade every theatre, Mrs. E. would have been entirely lost sight of in the lively "widow;"—as it was, we must confess, that we were several times in the predicament of Partridge in Tom Jones—her performance did not look like acting; it seemed reality.

The corps is altogether respectable;—the dry comic humor of Mr. Entwisle, is irresistible,—his Farmer Ashfield was one of the most chaste and judicious pieces of acting we have witnessed, since we had the pleasure of seeing the inimitable Bernard in the same part,—the indecisive expression of his countenance, when he and Jame Ashfield are about opening Susan's box, to get Bob Handy's letter, and the honest satisfaction that stole over his face, when the unopened letter was replaced, was nature itself.—In short, the whole of his performance which we have seen, is marked with great judgment, and proves his experience in his profession.

The good humored and laughing physiognomy of Lewis, render him an acquisition to a provincial company. Whether he comes up to the idea of the author, is not the question, in a place where we have few fastidious critics; his good natured pleasantry, will always make his appearance be hailed by nine-tenths of a country audience.

Carr's Murtoch Delany was excellent; and, if we adopt the maxim, ex hoc disce omnes, we may prophecy that he will be a good Irishman.

Mrs. J. and Mrs. L. are both pleasing in their manners;—the rest of the corps we consider highly worthy of patronage.—May we not hope, then, that the company which has ventured so far to the west for our gratification, shall receive an adequate reward for their enterprize? We call upon the fair sex, in particular, to step forward on this occasion, and with their presence as well as purses prove, that taste is not confined to the seaboard. I consider that the best interests of the sex are concerned in extending their influence in favor of Mrs. E. and company; she is one of those beings that shed a lustre round the female character, and refute the idea of its inferiority in intellect. Her pronunciation classically correct, her manners polished by long habit and minute attention, afford an admirable school for the admirers of elegance and of the English language. We proudly trust, that when they change their quarters and return to the east, they may be able to say, that Pittsburgh is not deficient either in taste or liberality.

[From the Raleigh (N. Carolina) Minerva]

Union.—From the Pittsburgh, (Pa.) Gazette, we perceive that it has been proposed, by distinguished gentlemen of different political complexions, that in selecting candidates for the State Legislature, no regard should be had to any former party distinctions—but that an attempt should be made to choose the fittest men who could be prevailed on to represent the country. This procedure would be truly wise and patriotic: and should the example be every where followed, the United States would really be a great nation. Our public councils would soon partake of the spirit of harmony and our congress emulate those of the revolution.

The Boston Centinel, says, "We deem the following anecdote worthy of record. "In the widow of the late President Wheelock, the President found the fair Comforter who dressed the wound which he received in the memorable battle of Trenton in 1777. As they had not before seen each other since that period, the emotions which the interview occasioned, may be better conceived than described."

Extract of a letter from Charleston, S. C.

"Major Champlin, late a quarter master in the U. States army, and the officer who led on Sir Gregor M'Gregor's attack against Amelia, has been apprehended.—The district court has held him to bail with two securities in the sum of four thousand dollars for his appearance at the next sitting thereof, but it is generally supposed he will not appear, and that M'Gregor will pay the money."

FOR ONE OR MORE YEARS.

JAMES WILEY Jr. Market street.

A grand object for the Enterprising,

WHEREIN a partner is wanted, to improve & occupy one of the most eligible and advantageous Mill-seats in the Western world. It is situated in the Illinois Territory, within six miles of Vincennes, on the great road leading to St. Louis and Kaskaskia, on the river Amberas, which is a stream sufficiently large to afford water to carry on any works that may be thought necessary, at all times—One of the banks of the stream is a permanent rock, rather of the saponaceous kind impervious to water and easily cut or fasnioned, as may be required—the bottom of the stream, opposite the mill is all sheeted with the same. The seat lies within one and a half miles of the Wabash river, enjoys all the advantages of the navigation of the same—the circumjacent country is equal to any section in the western country for agriculture, and especially for that staple commodity, WHEAT, as its situation is high and undulating, and of course healthy—the soil of a black loam mixed with sand—the face of the country interspersed with praries of the most agreeable texture, and in fertility second to none, and for the most part surrounded by luxuriant wood-lands, and as we may say it is yet almost in a state of nature, and affords a most advantageous range for cattle, hogs, etc. A number of families have lately settled in the vicinity, and shortly we look for a flourishing settlement there. Nature has been exuberant at the seat, as there is scarce any advantage that the enterprising partizan might almost wish or expect that is not to be found there. Take into view the manufacturing of flower largely for foreign markets—a complete seat for a boat and ship yard, also, for a brewery, distillery, and tanyard, and a well equiped tavern is much wanted at present to accommodate the road, and for which it is an excellent stand—there are many other advantages that will appear by taking a view of the premises. There is an excellent saw-mill now going, on the spot.

My primary object is to have erected and equiped a merchant mill with not less than three pair of stones. I will furnish the seat upon equitable terms.

It is hoped none will offer that are not of good standing in society, men of enterprize, and possessed of such funds as will enable them to carry on largely. A trio partnership would be preferred, as there is a great field for enterprize.

I also wish to sell the plantation I now live on, it contains 400 acres, 80 of which is under high cultivation, the fertility of which is second to none, has on it an excellent never failing spring, well calculated for a brewery or distillery as it has a great fall, situated within 3 miles of Vincennes, the subscriber who lives on the premises would think himself honored by any gentleman's calling who might have an eye to either of the objects & would take pleasure in shewing the same.

MEDICINES,
FOR SALE BY
J. W. SKELTON,
Pittsburgh Apothecary Hall,
Corner of Third and Wood streets
AND SKELTON AND HILL,
Market street, near the Diamond,
PITTSBURGH.

Doctor Bossy's
Celebrated Elixir of Health.

A medicine, possessing extraordinary powers in arresting the progress, and effectually curing consumption, with all its train of distressing symptoms—a disease which from its frequency, and difficulty of cure within the last three or four years, seems to threaten destruction to a great portion of our population. The author of this medicine is an aged german physician, of great celebrity and acknowledged talents, (residing in the city of London) whose wonderful success in the cure of consumption, has sounded forth his name to the utmost extent of Great Britain.

It is hoped and expected so great a blessing will not long remain untried by the inhabitants of America, whose diseased lungs, with teazing cough, loss of appetite, decay of strength, loss of flesh, pain in the chest, and depression of spirits, warns them of approaching dissolution.

DELAYS ARE DANGEROUS.

Not to try the means which Providence has placed within our reach, is little less than being our own executioners. It is therefore the duty of every afflicted mortal to seek a remedy in time.

While there is life there is hope!
To-morrow may come too late!!

Dr. Bossy's
Hysteric Drops.

A medicine, which has been for many years used with great success, both in Europe and America, speedily removing the most violent fits of Hysterics, like a charm.

Dr. Bossy's Lotion,
For burns and scalds.

Slight burns and scalds, if taken immediately will in general be cured by this Liniment. In case of a fever intervening, Epsom salts taken in small quantities, will assist the cure

When the mischief is extensive or deep, mortification may be apprehended, whether the subject be young or old; the advice therefore of a skilful physician or surgeon, should be procured without delay.

Dr. Bossy's Embrocation,
For bruises, strains, inflammations, rheumatism, &c.

A medicine in every respect superior to the common Steer's Opodeldoc, (so universally used) No medicine ever sold has a greater claim on the public than the one now offered; it being a useful external application for sprains, bruises, childblains, and for dispersing inflammatory tumours, rheumatism, burns scalds, &c.

Dr. Bossy's India Oil,
For the cure of cancers, wens, and all stubborn tumours, &c.

This celebrated Oil, the production of the East Indies, was first discovered by that great, and much celebrated physician of the East Indies, Foi Chi, whose great medical information, has reached the most remote parts of Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Russia, and the United States.

Thousands of empyrics and quacks, are daily offering to the world the most deadly poisons, such as Arsenic, muriate of Mercury, Licuta, &c. in the form of plaisters, Tinctures, Solutions, Pills, &c. thereby destroying the lives of hundreds and thousands of the community.

Infallible Remedy

For destroying Bugs in bedsteads, furniture &c.

This mixture will infallibly destroy them and their nits, though they swarm ever so much. It is necessary that the bed or furniture should be thoroughly wet with it, the dust being first shaken off, which will prevent the mixture staining in the least, or soiling even the richest silks, &c. Should any bugs appear after once using this mixture it will be only owing to not having well wetted the linen &c. of the bed with it. So that those parts being well wetted with the liquid, which dries as fast as it is used, and pouring in the joints and holes, where the sponge or brush cannot reach, they never fail of being all destroyed

N. B. It is necessary that the mixture should be well shaken together before it is used.

Doctor Velnos'

TURKISH GLUE or ARMENIAN CEMENT,
For mending China, glass, &c.

A discovery of first magnitude in domestic economy, Thousands of articles, many of the most useful are daily committed to the street &c for the want of some suitable Cement, to mend them. The one now offered has proved by experience, to answer the purpose, and will even join glass or china, so strong that it will often break in a fresh place.

Balsamic Aromatic Tincture,
Or the grand corrector of flatulence and acidity in the bowels of children.

A medicine so well calculated to relieve the bowel complaint of infant children, (as it is so emphatically called by nurses) that it needs only the trial of a single bottle, to recommend it to the attention of a family

To alleviate the sufferings of infant children, has called forth the talents of the most eminent physicians of every age, and the want of success appears chiefly to arise from the deeply rooted prejudices of parents and nurses, which the healing art has had to contend with. In this enlightened age much has been done towards banishing ancient prejudices, and we now find children taking food and physic, on much more rational principles than formerly. It is a fact clearly ascertained, that most of the diseases incident to children, do arise from bad management, want of cleanliness, and indigestible food The medicine here recommended is known to the physicians, for correcting acidity, promoting the digestive powers, warming and invigorating the stomach, and giving immediate ease in the most excruciating pains of the bowels.

The dose to a child a month old is sixty drops—three months old, eighty drops—six months old a tea spoonfull; after which, thirty drops may be added for every year of their age.

The mixture to be well shaken, and mixed with barley water, balm or mint tea, or cold water, and repeated every sixth hour till ease is procured.

Velno's Vegetable Ointment,
For the cure of the Rheumatism

Perhaps no country in the world is so subject to Rheumatism, as the United States of America. The most learned of the medical faculty, has not before been able to produce a medicine which would with certainty cure this dreadful scourge of mankind. Thousands of victims are at this day labouring under the most excruciating pain, from different and lasting attacks of this most formidable disease.

Doctor Velnos is happy in informing the citizens of the United States of America, that aftera laborious study and practice of forty years, he has at length found out a medicine, which will infallibly cure the Rheumatism in every stage; and strongly recommends to all who are so unfortunate as to be afflicted with the disease, to give this valuable medicine a trial: being composed of the most innocent vegetables, the young, the old, the aged and infirm may use it with the most perfect safety, and may rely with confidence on a perfect cure, if within the reach of medicine.

Since Doctor Velnos first discovered this very valuable vegetable Ointment, thousands have been cured; many who had not the use of their limbs for many years before

Dr. Hartman's Worm Cakes.

This is a mild and exceeding good vermifuge, may be given at all times with the greatest safety to the youngest infant, or pregnant women. It is celebrated for an astringent, which strengthens the tone of the stomach and intestines, and hence proves useful in disorders arising from laxity of the fibres, dropsical and bilious complaints or when the bowels are obstructed with slime.

Doran's Chymical Cake,
For removing grease from silk, cotton or woollen goods.

DOCTOR BREE'S TINCTURE.
For Asthma, Coughs, Colds, and approaching Consumptions.

Dr. Velnos' Antipertesis,
For the cure of Hooping Cough.

A medicine justly entitled to universal approbation, having been used with the most flattering success, in all the hospitals and infirmaries of Europe, and recommended highly by the most eminent of the faculty; is perfectly mild in its operation, and may be given to children with the regatest safety.
